

Amplify Your Voice, Brand & Impact!

YouMeWe Amplified Podcast, hosted by Suzanne F. Stevens, CSP, interviews women and non-binary leaders internationally who lead a social impact initiative through commerce, education, advocacy, or civil service – in the for-profit or not-for-profit sectors.

For the last eleven years, YouMeWe has amplified social contributors' voices to over 11,000 subscribers in over 75 countries. Access is complimentary to the interviewee and listener. YouMeWe proactively markets the guest's message on their exclusive page, on social sites, through emails to subscribers and syndication, among other mediums.

The catch? None. YouMeWe Social Impact Group believes that addressing social, economic, and environmental issues is a collaborative effort. Organizations can take the lead by baking social solutions into their DNA. Amplifying voices making a social impact is one of our commitments to social contribution.

What makes YouMeWe Amplified unique? We focus on 'how to.' We profile you and your brand while guiding others on shifting from where they are today to elevate their impact. In each episode, the audience will receive actionable insights that will include what, why, and how to create a social, economic, and environmental impact to empower them, their organization, and their community.

The audience will learn from changemakers like you, who are transforming where we live and work with sustainable social solutions.

I hope you will consider how your social impact, experience, and leadership can assist others to look at their life, organization, and social initiatives with consciousness and sustainably.
